

* The human eye and ear are vital sensory organs responsible for vision and hearing. Cataracts and glaucoma are among the most common eye disorders, while otitis media is a frequently encountered ear condition. However, these organs are susceptible to various disorders that can significantly affect their function.