

First and foremost, beauty is subjective. Therefore, focusing on external beauty as a benchmark for one's worth is not only limiting but also unfair.