

In the past, weddings had only close family and neighbors as guests. This is very different from today, where weddings often have many more guests and big celebrations.