

Face-to-face learning and online learning are two methods for learning a story for a web article describing a crime. Both methods have their advantages: face-to-face learning builds social skills, while online learning offers convenience and accessibility.