

Sampling method:– In this study, females between the ages of 18 and 30 will be selected using simple random sampling. In this way, fairness and objectivity are achieved in the selection process, making the selected sample correctly represent females in the specified age group, allowing for an accurate and comprehensive representation of females in the specified age group.