

There are two main types of flu, or the influenza virus called Influenza A and Influenza B. Influenza A is the group that most commonly causes illnesses in humans and is broken down into H and N subtypes, with 16 H subtypes and 9 N subtypes.