

Plastic is an essential component of modern life and is utilized in various aspects of our daily routine, including packaging, household items, and clothing.