But honestly, I don't feel that this job aligns with my interests and passions. I find myself more drawn to areas like analysis, research, and helping others indirectly by providing information, rather than being in a role that revolves around making frequent sales deals.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com