

First, the company must be in a fast crisis and address the public. Second, the company concerned must maintain honesty because the public is more willing to carry an explicit line of calculated lie.