

Various online brand communities can also help firms to identify and exploit opportunities in foreign markets through the provision of valuable information that help better understanding of consumer buying habits and preferences, the various stages of the purchasing process of foreign buyers, the acceptability of new product concepts and the effectiveness of advertising messages (Baldus et al., 2015; Gürhan-Canli et al., 2018).