

Greetings esteemed colleagues, My name is Shahd, and I am honored to represent the Department of Architecture at An-Najah National University in Nablus, Palestine, at this esteemed international exchange program in Madrid, Spain. It is a hub of architectural innovation and excellence, where students are encouraged to push boundaries and explore new frontiers in design. My involvement in various extracurricular activities, such as [mention specific activities or achievements], has further enriched my educational experience and expanded my perspective on the role of architecture in addressing societal challenges and promoting cultural heritage preservation. As an aspiring architect, I am passionate about leveraging my academic journey and experiences to contribute positively to our global community through innovative design solutions and sustainable architecture. Moreover, I am acutely aware of the importance of architecture in serving the Palestinian community.
