

In a complex hierarchical network, enterprise servers are usually located centrally. Network clients are not typically on the same subnet as those servers.