

Many food items with a deep red color, including fruit juices, candies, and gelatin, include a dye called cochineal or carmine.