

The Algerian Islamic Scouts is one of the institutions that cares for a large number of young people from a young age, and works to embody Islamic religious values in the behaviour of its members, based on a number of principles, the first of which is duty to God and the homeland, duty to others, and duty to oneself.