

Virtual reality (VR) glasses were created to make people feel like they are in a different world. Now, VR is also being used in areas like healthcare and virtual travel, changing how we experience digital content.