

A group of children live in the rainforest and they have a friend called Karbora. The charbora kept making some frightening sounds and the hunter was afraid of them. Karbora takes them to the tiger and his cubs to see him. Then Karbora said to the children: Sometimes evil men come and kill the tigers. Then he saw the hunter's charbora and went after him to follow him. "Crabora said, 'Okay,'" then someone asked. They want their beautiful coats.