The leader takes important steps to become more accurate and more useful to the company, the most important of which are: 1- Conducting job analyses: In this step, the nature of the job is determined for all employees 2- Selecting and hiring job candidates: In this step, the most qualified and experienced candidate is selected for the job.A leader with very high communication skills will be able to convey information and discuss with others more easily.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com