

Chronic low back pain refers to pain persisting for longer than three months, even after the initial injury or underlying cause of acute low back pain has been treated.