HACCP is the Hazard Analysis Critical Control Point system, a system responsible for food production operations and hazard identification during food production science, through continuous monitoring of the production process, Control of all production steps, and strict regulations to prevent any problems or hazards.