Architectural preservation is the practice of protecting and maintaining historically significant buildings, structures, and landmarks in order to retain their cultural, historical, and architectural value.