

However, the more challenging and impactful use of stem cells would come from the directed differentiation or transdifferentiation of stem cells into other cell types and tissues to help cure a plethora of incurable diseases.