

Homeostasis If you were exercising on a warm day, your rising core body temperature would trigger several homeostatic mechanisms, including increased transport of blood from your core to your body periphery, which is typically cooler. Proteins and other compounds in blood act as buffers, which thereby help to regulate the pH of body tissues. Blood helps to regulate the water content of body cells. The pH of