

The Moon is far away compared with where you might go in a jet airplane, but it sits at the tip of your nose compared with anything else in the universe. On this scale, Mars (at its closest) is a mile away