As Burke (1998) found that workers with higher readiness for change scores reported slightly highly emotional exhaustion scores.