The training metrics show that the Faster R–CNN model effectively learned to detect brain tumors. Overall, the model was well–tuned, achieving high precision with minimal overfitting or instability.