

Saudi Arabia is considered a developed country in many fields such as industry and the private sector, and is distinguished by its Internet services, and provides electronic services, in addition to a distinguished global education system.