To provide a shared understanding of data requirements among all stakeholders (users, managers, developers) To establish a clear scope of what data needs to be stored and managed To serve as a blueprint for logical and physical design phases To ensure business requirements are captured correctly before technical implementation

Summarized by © lakhasly.com