

The effects of climate change on marine life are profound. Rising ocean temperatures are leading to widespread coral bleaching and the loss of biodiversity in marine ecosystems.