

In one aspect or the other, we all have come across the word 'Corruption.' According to political ideology's definition, 'Corruption is a form of dishonesty or criminal offence undertaken by a person or organization entrusted with a position of authority, to acquire illicit benefit or abuse power for one's private gain.' Seems lengthy and confusing, right? Most simply, corruption is dishonest behaviour practised by authorities such as managers or government officials. This is how people with power rule the world, thereby violating certain people's rights and privileges. It is said that time changes everything. But here it is, this dishonest act and the unsatisfying term haven't changed for years on end. It is still prevalent. The main reason for corruption in India is the link between bureaucrats, politicians, and criminals. Gone are the days when bribes were given when things are wrong. Presently, bribes receive to hide the right stuff. May it be a minor issue or a life-threatening one, a younger child or an adult man, a school-going boy to a working person everyone has seen and has fallen prey to corruption. These days, even if a person isn't qualified enough for a public sector job, he can quickly get it by spending money and giving bribes to higher officials.
