

Listening response strategies are essential for effective communication, as they show respect and ensure clarity. Fourth, when giving constructive criticism, it's important to do so respectfully. First, nonverbal feedback cues, such as nodding, smiling, or maintaining eye contact, help signal that we are engaged with the speaker's message. This might include comments like "That makes sense" or "I agree with you," which show that we have processed the message. Third, when responding to someone in need of emotional support, offering words of comfort and encouragement is key. For instance, telling a friend "I'm here for you" or "You're not alone" can provide emotional relief.