

1. Entropy as a State Function: In thermodynamics, entropy is a state function that measures the amount of disorder or randomness in a system.