

Based on the finding, there is a large percentage that believes that urbanization has two positive aspects: it revitalizes the economy and the other sees that it affects the environment through its pollution.