

process undertaken by the nurse to systematically collect subjective and objective information about a patient to create a comprehensive database for use in planning care.