

Animals should be maintained in zoos under more natural environmental conditions and shouldn't be trapped in such small areas. It is especially true for wild animals used to living in the wild.