

Employees with certain disabilities or special needs may not benefit from online learning unless programs provide appropriate accommodations. Accessibility must be top of mind when designing or purchasing learning programs.