

barcoding systems, patients wear a bracelet that nurses can then scan and match against barcoded medications, blood products, and medical devices to confirm they are administering the right treatments to their patients. Although not driven by federal incentives to adopt EHRs, all nine hospitals are benefiting from the federal meaningful-use incentive program.