

Addiction means physical and physiological surrender to a certain habit or activity such as Technological addiction is generally considered to be the following factors in the emergence of the disease: Spending a lot of time on the Internet intentionally or unintentionally.