

Every day, many people deal with problems like money issues, natural disasters, health problems, and social inequalities.