

Material Removal Processes are family of shaping operations, the common feature of which is removal of material from a starting workpart so the remaining part has the desired geometry.