

Developing a sense of belonging towards the homeland by: By ensuring that public property is not vandalized or plundered, and by maintaining cleanliness in public places; Such as parks, streets, hospitals, and respect for state facilities and its operating institutions. And safeguarding citizens' trusts, if the citizen works in government institutions that provide public services to the public; Such as municipal councils and public secretariats, in addition to managing people's interests in government institutions and others, such as respecting the role of auditors in government hospitals, and not being biased towards relatives or friends in this regard. On the basis of the social responsibility borne by the citizen, priority is given to those who suffer from difficult health problems.