

Angel Reese and Kamilla Cardoso shine as they deliver the opening pitch at the Cubs game. Chicago Sky's promising rookies, Angel Reese and Kamilla Cardoso, added another memorable moment to their burgeoning careers by throwing the ceremonial first pitches at Wrigley Field on Tuesday. The event took place before the Chicago Cubs' game against the Atlanta Braves, marking another high-profile appearance for the duo in their new city. Reese & Cardoso continue to take Chicago by storm Reese and Cardoso, selected third and seventh respectively in the 2024 WNBA Draft, have been active around Chicago, engaging with fans and the community. Her debut is expected on June 1 against the Indiana Fever, where fans eagerly await her contribution to the team's frontcourt alongside Reese. The Sky began their season with a tough loss to the Dallas Wings but bounced back to even their record. Their first home game at Wintrust Arena this Saturday against the Connecticut Sun promises to be an electrifying event, especially with Reese's strong start and the anticipation of Cardoso's return.
