

The placenta attaches to the wall of the uterus, and fetus umbilical cord arises from it. This structure provides oxygen and nutrients to growing fetus and removes waste products from fetus blood.