

There are several roles of the importance of Art in our society. Firstly, The artist's relationship with his society is his involvement with the problems of society, but rather it is a concept of love, jealousy, and desire for the development of society, the artist's relationship with his society is an interactive relationship, influenced by society and its events, influenced by the social environment, and interacts with it, which increases his belonging and his feeling. Secondly, Art has a great importance in the development of society, as it affects the characteristics of our daily lives, such as education, clothing, housing, and furniture. Any production or industrial activity is not devoid of artistic taste. In conclusion, Art has many different roles that affect our society.