

Inductive reasoning is used to show the likelihood that an argument will prove true in the future.