

In some ways, socializing on the internet is similar to socializing in person. On the other hand, some people prefer socializing online because it doesn't need any preparation. Applications such as, What's Up and Skype allow people to communicate from all over the world. If you want to chat, you can simply log in and start chatting.