

Businesses are now creating a strategy to mitigate these risks as a result of the rise in cyberattacks. There is no longer a one-dimensional method associated with data recovery. Establishing a flexible strategy to lessen the impact of these attacks is part of this, because the data requirements are complex.