

The innate immune system is an important part of any immune response.