

The great majority of engineers are employed by private industrial or business organizations (see Table 2.3). Most of the jobs in engineering are with large corporations. Engineers who work for large companies typically have many career options.