

Means–End Theory A means–end chain suggests that an advertisement should contain a message, or means, that leads the consumer to a desired end state.