Teacher: Works within a structured, formal educational system (like a school or university) and follows a set, comprehensive curriculum.They typically require formal pedagogical training and state-issued licenses.Instructor: Generally teaches specific, practical skills or a trade rather than broad academic knowledge.Examples include a driving instructor or a computer programming instructor.Their goal is the student's general academic and often personal development within a classroom of many students.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com